Adam believes that, in order to provide competent and professional representation, he must understand the legal issue at hand from his client's perspective. Whether advancing or defending a claim, Adam works efficiently to provide effective advice tailored toward client goals and interests. Some of Adam's recent matters include:

- Representing automobile insurance companies in cases involving property damage, personal injury, and subrogation.
- Representing commercial, property, and professional negligence insurers.
- Representing municipalities in cases involving alleged negligent inspection.
- Representing both contractors and homeowners in the context of residential building contract construction.
- Representing owners, contractors, and subcontractors in cases involving commercial litigation.
- Representing shareholders in the context of oppression claims.
