Providing legal services through a professional corporation.

John's clients include retailers, service providers, universities and educational institutions, manufacturers, and health care and mining firms. Some of the ways he has helped these clients are by:

- Advising a national employer on terminations resulting from the contracting out of cleaning services.
- Representing various employers and organizations responding to human rights complaints.
- Acting for an employer with operations in many provinces in developing a drug and alcohol policy.
- Representing an employer in a labour arbitration where an employee was dismissed for sick leave fraud and the arbitrator upheld the dismissal relying in part on video surveillance.
