Jamie's clients work hard to provide the highest quality products and services to their customers, and with that comes risk. She is seen as a trusted advisor who allows clients to focus their efforts on the continued growth and success of their businesses, while she works on the legal matters at hand. Jamie seeks to gain a deeper understanding of her client's legal challenges to develop a strategy tailored to their specific needs and values. She has:

- Advocated for clients in complex medical malpractice trials
- Advised governmental agencies in the legislative amendment process
- Represented commercial clients in the resolution of small claims and Court of Queen's Bench matters
- Developed industry-specific reference documents to simplify aquaculture litigation
- Assisted in alternative dispute resolution to achieve swift and favourable outcomes for clients
